SCOTTONIAN

FOR NINETEEN THIRTY SEVEN

To Mr. Roy A. Welday, head of the department of physical sciences, whose services have aided immeasurably in the development of Scott and in the improvement of the Scottonian, we dedicate this twenty-fourth annual Scottonian. In school and out the "Major", as he is affectionately called by his friends, has made life enjoyable for all fortunate enough to have been associated with him.

WE have at Scott instructors young

And others, somewhat older,

Who tell the students what is what—

Especially the bolder.

The deans are such a jolly lot,

But songs they're always humming

Whose words are countless penalties

For students who've been bumming.

Instruction here is at its peak;

Intelligence is high;

But pedagogues have quite a time

When holidays are nigh.

The faculty play quite a part

In daily life at Scott.

They are endeared in every heart

Of Scott's great melting pot.

AT Scott they serve us food for thought,
Like English, French, and math;
And other foods quite bitter,
To beset our troubled path.
And though you think our plight is sad,
It really isn't so,
For there are many pleasures
That can balance all the woe.
This thinking meal is spiced with joy,
And here in all our features,
We show to you the fun at Scott—
With students, dogs, and teachers.
And thus in special pages we shall
Show, to win your favor,
The food for thought that's served to us—
With very Scottish flavor.

JUST as the bees that buzz about
Have hives to which they swarm,
The students ought to have for their
Activities some form,
By which they carry on their games.
And so, we have fine clubs,
With places in their ranks for both
Professionals and dubs.
Our sports provide the only things
That everybody likes,
In basketball it's lots of thrills,
In golf it's lots of hikes.
Athletics take the major share
Of everyone's attention;
Attending contests has become
A matter of convention.

STUDENTS tall and students short,
Of every shape and size,
Pretty girls and handsome boys,
And scholars—oh so wise?
The seniors with their atmosphere
Of culture and of charm;
To mimic them will certainly
Result no freshie harm.
The juniors with their quiet air
Of deepest concentration
Outdo the lofty sophomores
In gay sophistication.
The classes are the different steps
From petty insurrection
To civilized pursuits in life
And all-around perfection.

Men may come and men may go,
The great men and the rabble,
But teachers are like little brooks,
For on and on they babble.

AS I look back over this school year, I am more and more impressed with the fine spirit of the student group, as manifested both in student affairs and in student-teacher relations. It is a great credit to student leadership that such a high type of cooperation does prevail, and I hope that it may be characteristic of Scott in the future.

R.H. Demorest

O U R P R I N C I P A L

In the twenty-five years since the founding of Scott High School, Mr. Demorest's loyalty, understanding and never-failing endeavor have built Scott into a school noted for its scholastic standing and leadership. He has made possible a well rounded school life, one which prepares students for their great adventure—real life. Scott spirit has developed through our Principal's gracious understanding of Scott's problems and his willingness to help all.

D E A N S

One of the great privileges of a dean is that of knowing so many girls. To me, all my girls are attractive and interesting. Here's to their success in Scott and afterward!

—ANNE SMEAD

I wish to express my appreciation of the work of the commissions of the Student Council, particularly the Student Court, in securing the cooperation and loyalty of the entire student body.

—THAD P. CORBETT

Faced with directing both old Scott girls and newcomers from Robinson, the Sophomore Dean rejoices when a unified group of juniors assume upper classman duties.

—MARY PERKINS

The present Sophomore Class is to be congratulated on its splendid spirit of accomplishment. Its program of activities may well set the standard for years to come.

—VIRGIL CRAMER

Another fine group of seniors is about to leave us. May the memory of their years spent here always be happy! May we who remain strive to keep Scott's standards high!

—MARGARET E. SCHAFF

My "credo," that dealing understandingly with boys' problems will develop in them right attitudes, has been successful. I express appreciation for the fine response of the 310 boys and for the cooperation of Mr. Demorest and the faculty.

—EARLE F. BAUM

Miss Anne Smead (116 Girls), Mr. Thad P. Corbett (116 Boys), Miss Mary Perkins (214 Girls), Mr. Virgil Cramer (214 Boys), Miss Margaret Schaff (310 Girls), Mr. Earle F. Baum (310 Boys).

Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Beggs, Miss Bierly

Time marches on as the thundering herd charges down the stairs in an attempt to keep up with it.

Ring the Bell

The office—the hub about which all school activities revolve! Sooner or later all inquiries and problems find their solutions here. The smiling staff efficiently answers the questions of students, visitors, and teachers, while the clock gloatingly counts the seconds until with a loud b-r-r-ing it can fill the classrooms, halls, and office with confusion for a few minutes; then, as easily, send Scotters back to work again.

Sending transcripts of credits to colleges, keeping permanent records of every Scott student, checking eligibility for athletic events, keeping track of teachers' attendance, calling in substitutes when needed, and taking care of the teachers' mail boxes would keep any staff busy. But in addition to these duties, our office staff must be ready immediately to take care of many other things which come up in the day's work.

The head clerk and school treasurer is Miss Neva Bierly. Mrs. Maebyron Hoover takes care of attendance and orders supplies. The book room was managed by Mrs. Grace Covert, but during her long illness her place was taken by Mrs. Margaret Beggs.

We should not underestimate the importance of the office in our school life. Its files affect our careers not only in high school but also in business and college.

Miss Wisely

Books, books, books! Languages, social sciences, natural sciences, and fiction! Bright new bindings and well-worn old ones—all helping to make the library a cheerful and important part of Scott.

Miss Wisely efficiently rules her small domain, doing everything possible to make it easy for book-seekers to use the available material. Students who are looking for books are cheerfully aided by a competent library staff which she has trained especially for this work. Members of this staff include Charlotte Aiduss, Nancy Ann Butt, Mary Helen Bettridge, Mildred Dolgin, Ruth Grubbs, Florence Hudgin, Ann Judy, Freda Kammen, Rose Keeler, David Krosner, Luella Krueger, Anna Mae Lacey, Elliott Latez, Fern Lepold, Wilma Merillet, Robert Reines, Roslyn Rice, Dorothy Stalnaker, Barbara Thompson, Delores Vanell, Ray Van Sant, Naomi Zuleger, William Buller.

To encourage self-help, students are taught to use the card-catalogues, the Dewey Decimal System, and the Reader's Guide. Each year many new books are added to the collection, keeping it up to date. Rentals are charged for these books until they have paid for themselves. All other volumes and magazines may be borrowed without charge by any Scotter for one week with the privilege of renewal for one week more. Books placed on the reserve shelf are for the use of entire classes and so may be taken out over night only.

The progressiveness, efficiency, and helpfulness of Miss Wisely and her staff are greatly appreciated by all who use the library.

It's a wise teacher who sees nothing but studying going on in the library.

The refreshing oddity of reading fairy tales in school (i. e. world literature);

Mrs. Carney's lasting popularity;

The seniors' acting out ballads in choric speaking;

Miss McGuinness's former favorite expression, "You're dodging the issue," has given way to "Take a message to Garcia";

Mr. Merickel's great enjoyment of coaching the light weights, perhaps a result of his own experience as a student on the football teams at Scott and Wittenberg;

Those essays the seniors had to write, complete with bibliographies, notes, and outlines;

Miss Caughey's splendid influence as a permanent part of Scott;

The amount of luggage Miss Cockayne considered necessary for a trip to the Smoky Mountains—twenty-one bags for four people;

The poetry that Miss Paschall gets out of her creative writing classes;

Miss Humphrey's oft-heard words, "Well, now let's get back to the subject";

The fun of finding slang expressions in Shakespeare;

Miss Perkin's contagious enthusiasm for modern Broadway plays.

Mr. Lamb is picture shy — according to the Scottonian photographers;

Miss Aufderheide's expression, "And so forth and so on" (bringing visions of probable answers on those many tests she gives);

"Julius Caesar," the freshman's first tilt with Shakespeare;

Miss Field's radiance and those chic clothes she makes herself;

Miss Holt was so much missed at Robinson that that school has never ceased trying to get her back;

How much the freshmen and sophomores like Miss Foster;

The booming cheerfulness of Miss Schaff's voice breaking through a Latin student's day-dreams, and the not-at-all-cheerful result;

Miss Cockayne's naive request, "Will somebody please explain what 'nuts' means?";

How Scotters were ever pried loose from enough cash to pay for the new Webster's Dictionary for Miss Cockayne's home room;

Miss Clark coming back last fall with an M.A. degree from Ohio State University;

Miss Sivers' great curiosity and enthusiasm for the Holy Land, which led her to take the second semester off to go riding on a camel.

C L A S S R O O M M E M O R I E S

Those frogs we dissected in biology—and the way they jumped even after they were cut open;

Mr. Welday's refrain, "I want you to get the scientific angle of this";

The stinging, choking smell of the ammonia scattered in the chemistry laboratory;

Miss Larkin's ability to manage an airplane or a science club;

The honor-winning scholarship teams Mr. Bradford turns out each year;

Our wonder as to what would happen if Mr. Welday, after a year of making expert drivers out of poor beginners, were to be in an accident;

Those vanishing curiosities, large rooms at Scott—especially the dissection of Mr. Bradford's spacious laboratory into two inconsiderable fragments;

The thrilling accounts we heard of Mrs. Briesse's Christmas vacation in Florida;

Mr. Bistline's ability to cope with unruly students, that probably comes from his contacts with his father, a Juvenile Court Judge;

That the smell of the biology laboratory sometimes (though rarely) exceeds even that of the chemistry "lethal chamber";

Those grand motion pictures Miss Smead and Miss Krueger specialize in taking;

Counting the bones of the skeleton in general science;

Mr. Weiser's oft-repeated remark, "The only important thing in this course is to learn to think scientifically," (and our never realized hope that some day he would remember it while handing out grades);

The meter in general science into which we "huffed and we puffed," all for the sake of measuring our lung capacity;

That Mr. Rettig believes in keeping cool—except when he harangues assemblies, classes, or football stars. During the summer work in an ice plant does the trick;

Those students who tasted undiluted H_2SO_4 ;

That experiment in which Mr. Weiser freezes a hot dog, and then, with an angelic smile, calmly remarks, "Now it's a cold dog!";

That Miss Wachter is not only an authority on biology, but also on both drama and knitting.

The calm way in which Mr. Langstaff interrupts some perspiring student with "I doubt that" or "Now, let's have that more in detail";

Miss Kirkby's trip to Europe last summer, and the excellent example she saw of the German people's patience, waiting willingly all day just to hear one of the high government officials speak;

The great fascination that ancient history has for nearly every student;

Mr. Timmon's pride in his chess playing and in his claim to Nathan Hale as a grand uncle;

Miss Collins' favorite expression, "Come! Come!";

That cheery smile of Miss O'Brien's;

Mrs. Parkhurst's bicycle trip through England, with such things as brakes on the handle bars and riding on the left side of the road to add to the difficulty;

The fairness of Mrs. Featherstone's idea that "I wish I could wait to see how you vote before I give you a grade for American Government";

Miss Painchaud's many trips to Alaska, Columbia, Florida, and most of the United States.

That the pictures of omnibuses which Miss Butler draws on the blackboard so closely resemble her pictures of chocolate cakes with wheels added;

Mr. and Mrs. Erausquin's thrilling escape from Spain last summer at the outbreak of hostilities there;

The possible causes of Miss Staadecker's frequent exclamation, "What have I done to deserve all this?";

Those highly-colored accounts we've heard of Miss Canniff's convincing imitations of a Spanish prima donna (and why the budget commission doesn't sponser a teachers' talent show instead of allowing such ability to be wasted on the Scott-DeVilbiss faculty parties);

That sweet smile Miss Butler bestows on a class while emphatically declaring, "Je suis féroce!";

The possible existence of any student who does not know what Miss Bissell means when she exclaims, "Pas de chicle en classe!";

That the "know-everything" manner of college students annoys Miss Hamilton, but that she doesn't seem to mind high school sophomores;

Those practical demonstrations of a baby's first step that Mr. Corbett used to give in connection with his explanation of the subconscious mind and the psychology of cats and dogs;

These extemporaneous speeches that a number of well-known characters at Scott frequently give in Mr. Baum's classes;

That other teachers do not adopt Miss Refior's idea, "I refuse to talk before the bell rings," hoping that a good example might affect students;

Former students' claim that Pythagorus is Mr. Eberth's favorite mathematician;

Mr. Corbett's trouble in learning the Greek alphabet;

Miss Kudzia's ability to mix (to us) two utterly foreign things—music and mathematics;

Miss Lecklider's impressions of a former flood—consisting mostly of fried egg sandwiches which she helped to make from eggs sent in from one small town and buns sent from another.

That one noon Mr. Kirk went into Mr. Cramer's room, and turned all the chairs toward the back of the room, then wrote on the blackboard, "Students are allowed to rest their eyes for the remainder of the semester";

That Miss Elliot's classes are constantly admonished, "Keep your eyes on your copy" and "Accuracy before speed";

That Mr. Dunn was formerly an architect;

That bridge players should beware of Mr. Sutter—it seems that those who play with him have no chance of anything but ignoble defeat;

That Miss Dallet's success in teaching is probably due to practicing her salesmanship on her students—but even then, anyone who can sell business principles must be pretty good;

That the first floor hall patrols greatly enjoy those jokes Mr. Lake tells;

That Mr. Fankhauser's helpfulness is extended to everyone with whom he comes in contact;

That Miss Lester has been working very hard on her M.A. degree from Michigan;

That the Scottonian staff has found out something which mechanical drawing students have long known—that Mr. Roe keeps things in perfect order (for proof consider the many new cupboards and files in the Scottonian room this year);

That Mr. Dunn keeps the engineering club running as smoothly as his own department (the newspaper the engineers publish contains some very good jokes—Mr. Lake should read it);

That when Mr. Mater isn't too busy painting or hunting and fishing, he is very good at passing girl scouts in their tests for the handywoman badge;

That Mr. Lake's pep and enthusiasm have a great deal to do with making an excellent golf team a usual thing at Scott;

That it is no wonder that Mr. Fankhauser is such an excellent bookkeeping teacher—before he became one, he had a great deal of actual experience in office work;

Though many pictures we have tossed
Into a rubbish can,
The next few pages take you with
Our candid camera-man.

For those who haven't had the time
To get around a lot,
We now present our features, which
Reveal the fun at Scott.

S

If an explosion should rip off the roof of the school, the students would rejoice at the vacation. But if the roof were removed without anyone's knowing it, the cherubs could look down from heaven into Scott. . . . Perhaps they would see, at the Red Cross dance, a little exchange of flattery, "Oh, go on, you say that to all the girls." . . . Or Andy Locken cutting up in the library and being bawled out by Miss Wisely . . . Esther Simon pats on the powder to get that "come hither" look. . . . Betty Blair forgets the cosmetics for a little while to turn chemist; she seems engrossed in a scale now. . . . At least we were optimistic about the Scott-Waite game. . . . Mike Fleurer waits at the service desk to give aid to any fair damsel in distress.

High on his pedestal of knowledge, Mr. Weiser assumes a severe look and hides his one-ounce dumbbells. . . . In the pool, Jack Flowers prepares to do a special back two and one half belly smack. . . . We sure would have a tough time without "Dad" Tucker, who can conjure up anything from fuses to plungers. . . . Fire drills are always welcome interludes. . . . Chuck Tobin and Jane Davis give a little example of the modern dance, or can you call it that? . . . Plenty of scares were given by the cops who issued the licenses. . . . The managers of the stationers' desk put on their best sales smile, but no sale. . . . Mr. Welday claims to be an expert iceman, and he certainly swings a mean pick. . . . And the senior play goes into rehearsal, directed by Mr. Miller.

Even though the roof isn't likely to be blown off, the cameraman removes it conveniently, so that the cherubs in Scott, as well as those in heaven, can have a look inside.

THE PULSE OF THE PEOPLE

SWING, BABY, SWING

Steps quite drastic and elastic, as they trip the light fantastic,
Rhumbas that the Cubans never tried to do before;
Perfect pace and form and grace within a very narrow space,
Dizzy leaps and dips and turns upon the slippery floor.

Dancers tall and dancers small come crowding in the crowded hall,
Greeting all the chaperones and students that they know;
Then the band upon the stand begins a tune and gets a hand,
As all the dancers then about the floor begin to flow.

Barbara Manton and her pantin' escort, Joe, enjoy the chantin';
Sid and Patty turn about the floor a couple times;
Jeany Spring begins to swing with Tallman in a fancy fling;
We hear the crooner in the band as with his voice he chimes.

Margy Swick begins to click (you can't deny that she's some trick!);
The floor, which once was slippery, gets quite smooth and very nice;
Dancers fleet turn on the heat and tread upon their partners' feet,
Leaving tempers not so sweet, and thoughts as cold as ice.

At each dance some new romance is started with a covert glance,
And things become quite gay when once the music has begun.
And have no fear that through the year there will be many dances here,
And students all will come and dance and have a lot of fun.

Upon the close, each couple goes to some new eating place it knows,
And eats and drinks and talks until the clock gives forth a warning;
Their course they bend and homeward wend so they some time in sleep may spend,
And get to sleep at three o'clock or later in the morning.

SOUP'S ON

Most of the girls at Scott eat to live, in order to care for their waistlines. Most of the boys, it seems, live to eat. While passing the refectory tables, one always hears, "Oh, my dear, I just have to cut down on my calories; I've gained eight ounces this week!" (Usually the gal looks like a toothpick anyway.) Most tables are the same, twenty books in the middle, surrounded by six or seven trays, each tray with one dish, one knife, and one fork on it. John Huebner seems to be trying to get most of his meal into his mouth in one bite, a rather unusual procedure, according to the expression on Don Cameron's face. Conversation at the teachers' tables is much the same as that at the students'; the teachers need the energy after half a day's onslaught, and they pile into the victuals with a vim. You may not be able to tell it, but the girls in the right hand picture are carefully dividing an apple into parts of fifteen calories each. "We gotta watch our figgers."

Mr. Lamb and Mr. Eberth pause in the routine of eating, while Mr. Cramer gives a little dissertation on desserts to Mr. Demorest. The gentleman eating the banana has a spark in his eye; one moment later he turned around and murmured, "If there is a heaven on earth, bananas" Even beauty haunts the refectory, as a newcomer to Scott makes headway into the food.

Social life goes on at the refectory tables. "Have you heard the latest? Say that again, I didn't hear you," and the buzz continues about dates, manicures, and a thousand subjects. Bob Tallman is surprised by the sudden appearance of the cameraman who snaps the bottle of milk. And at last we find the first student who really looks as though he enjoys the meal. Lorene Hein inspires us with the thought that food is like knowledge: we take it because we have to; digest it, and then go back the next day for some more.

Innocent

ABROAD

Mr. Deeds wasn't the only person who went to town; Alice is doing pretty well herself. "Now the student court will get ya if ya don't watch out," threatens Ed Doermann, our worthy jurist. But a few pats of the powder puff, and Alice has been forgiven completely.

It doesn't take a very sharp eye to catch various destroyers of the local rules. The candid cameraman found Ted Fess and Ken Thompson smoking on the entranceway to the school. "I'd use my pipe, if I could, but you can smell the darned thing a mile away," says Ted. . . . And here we find seven exponents of the art of the cubes, but it ain't no geometry class. "Come, you bee-autiful naturals, baby needs a new pair of shoes." . . . Scott has its own transformation of "Pennies from Heaven," as Ray Morton drops a few pennies from the balcony. "I believe in encouraging youthful talent." . . . A couple of potential heavyweight champs are Paul Fritz and Robert Klinton, but when they were photographed, they looked like a couple of chumps. . . . And sweet peace is broken as Charles Schwartzbaugh and Erle Hill are found eating in study hall 310. . . . Paul Klag refused to let us see the name of the girl that he had put in the heart on the locker. "Three penalties," we told him, but he still thought that his love was sacred. . . . A nice, juicy spitball was practically on its way across the room when John Dunham was snapped.

The two ungentlemanly gentlemen with their hats on are Wayne Allinson and Ernie Wisnofske; they're due for a couple of penalties. . . . And the picture of pictures! Mr. Corbett would be mighty interested to see what happens when he leaves the room during an algebra test. What is the answer book doing on a student's desk?

Classes

IN THE CLASSES

Since most of the time of the students is spent in the classrooms, it is only fitting to show the students as they are at work. . . . The mysteries of ancient rocks are explored in Mr. Bradford's class in geology. . . . Miriam Davis is a bit puzzled by some question on an English examination. . . . Chief stooge Aleck Borman and Donald Cameron explain (by request) the working of a spherical triangle to Miss Refior. . . . Mrs. Erausquin takes time off from talking about the Spanish War in order to tell her Spanish class about "el hombre." . . . Future Rembrandts make their squares and circles under direction of Miss Morgan. Some may sell pictures for thousands of dollars in a few years.

"Christmas comes but once a year,
With weather clear and snappy.
Teachers give out work in books;
Students give back dirty looks;
And everyone is happy."

Behold the angelic choir at the top left, singing French Christmas carols. Temperamental Mel Weinman refused to be photographed and so turned his back; and Danny Kastle looks very serious for the occasion. . . . Moving on, we see Pete Hoffman decorating a Christmas basket. . . . Miss Bissell studies the book of carols, while Miss Singal plinks the ivories. . . . Of course, there is the traditional assembly, with baskets on exhibit. . . . Ladies and gentlemen, witness the paradox of the century—Christmas at hand, and Georgia Boyer looks fit to eat someone. That seems odd, to say the least.

Lassies all dolled up for the Senior Mid Year Dance, which occurred near Christmas, smile for the cameraman. Naomi is too tired to stand up. . . . And who that has ever taken economics will forget Mr. Langstaff, "If dealer A has a thousand Christmas presents, and consumer B has 6 children, what will be the price of December wheat?" At least, it used to sound about as clear as that to us. . . . Here's one boy who solves the problem of gifts by making them in the shop. . . . While the Blade photographer was making preparations to snap the prizewinning Christmas basket surrounded by a bit of feminine appeal, we stepped up and snapped it first. Perhaps that accounts for the soulful look in Nancy Mundy's eyes. . . . Ah well, at least you have to admit that these scenes should have happened only at Christmas time! (P.S.—We have just found out that Georgia Boyer's expression is due to an over-the-vacation assignment from Mr. Welday. What a life!)

"The stars that we can find at Scott
Would shine and make a skyful.
These artists of the powder puff,
Who leave their numbers on your cuff,
Are really quite an eyeful."

THE POWDER PUFF PARADE

Patty Hill would make a good eyeful even for Argus, as she sits on a refectory table. Quite a morsel! . . . Who should come down the bannister but Barbara Manton, "Oh please don't take my picture!" . . . Isabelle (Popeye) Swalley meets us at the stair-top. "Smile, and show your pretty buck teeth," says the cameraman. "Oh yea-a-a-h?" says Isabelle. . . . And Sue Miller blushes—blushes better than anyone else at Scott.

A balmy bit of beauty from jolly old H'England—Mabel Greene. . . . How would you like to meet Kaki Schwartzbaugh and Harriet Applegate on the stairway? . . . Or Betty Deeds and Jean Spring? . . . Or Virginia Nathanson on the entrance wall? You don't need glasses to appreciate that beauty. . . . The problems of Pluto seem to bother Carol McNierney. . . . Oh for the life of a dog!

Just a couple of outdoor girls are Janet Bourque and Judy Blair. . . . Naomi Zuleger and Winky Robinson turn to see the birdy. . . . Well, how Pluto has traveled—Now he's in the hands of Barbara Souder. . . . Strolling about we see Lois Bell and then Georgia Boyer and Marjorie Sala. . . . So here's a toast to the ladies, to their hopes and loves and hates. We may not think we like 'em, but they're gosh-darned good for dates.

FAMILIAR FACES

Some of the faces about us make us happy; some of them make us shudder. But nearly all of them are familiar, and so we give you a cameraman's eye view of faces at Scott. . . . Anita Carvalho and Chuck Eggert help out the senior play, somewhere in the third act. . . . Rest for weary Willie, or weary Eliot, is supplied by one of the second floor ashcans, while Janet Urich chides him for his laziness. . . . Our editor-in-chief takes time off to examine the inside of the bell. . . . All the letter girls pose for the regular Scottonian photographer; a rather husky bunch. (One of them knocked the photographer across the room when he got fresh.) . . . Here, in our wild life album we find a squirrel, attracted by two nuts, Janet Bourque and Judy Blair. . . . "Says you," says Mel Weinman; "Says me," says George Newton, in the play "Scoop." . . . We caught Chuck Eggert again, this time being tried by the student court. . . . A delicious tidbit is Miriam Klempner in a gym suit, and two or three hundred boys will agree. . . . "If you can't be quiet, you can find some other study hall." After this cry, one finds Miss Gould's rooms rather peaceful.

Up above, grade cards seem to be the objects of attention. . . . Charley, the janitor, empties out one of the baskets that students fill daily. . . . Donald Scott Morrison plays a Debussy Rondo about a toy shop. . . . And Mr. Baum philosophizes about the future of the human race as he gloomily munches a sandwich.

And now that you have gone through the feature section, and seen many of the faces at Scott, see how many of the faces you can recognize in the picture taken at Fulton school several years ago. They've changed a little.

Athletics take the major share
Of everyone's attention,
Attending contests has become
A matter of convention.

Our Student Council, publications,
Orchestra, and band
Assist the students through the year
And lend a helping hand.

A T H L E T I C S

Our school has been distinguished by
Athletic men galore;
Her football team has brought her fame
Her track squads added more.
But men are not the only ones
Whom sportsmanship enthalls,
And Scott has long been noted for
Her nimble-footed gals.
Decisions of the referees
Do oft our laddies vex,
But not a bottle e'er is hurled
By Scotland's fairer sex.
Our players are quite widely known,
And of them all do hear,
But naught is ever said about
The boys who lead the cheer.

C O A C H E S

Scott has just completed another successful athletic season, winning the state title in cross country, the district championship in track, and city titles in swimming and lightweight basketball. No athletic team, with the exception of the varsity basketball squad, finished lower than second place in city competition. Scott has been consistently good in athletics not by any decree of the fates, but rather through the tireless efforts of the Scott coaching staff.

Heading the coaching staff and serving in the capacity of athletic director is Carl Meissner, who has been turning out excellent swimming teams since 1921. He has also been trainer and basketball coach. It was through his unceasing efforts that a lighting system, considered one of the finest in the state, was installed in the stadium and that funds were secured to rebuild the locker rooms.

Upon the shoulders of Bob Rettig falls the task of turning out a football team of championship calibre. Due to Coach Rettig's hard work and excellent training, the Bulldogs this year became known as one of the strongest teams in the state of Ohio.

Coach Meissner, athletic director, always adds pep to assemblies with a talk taken from a long list of statistics in his hand. Coach Rettig, fiery football coach, discourses on any sport to anyone who shows even the slightest interest in sports. Coach Merickel's lack of hair is the butt of many a joke, but his ability "to take it" has made him popular with the student body. Coach Bistline is very quiet, but what he doesn't know about sports wouldn't be worth knowing. Coach Brown, a great addition to any coaching staff, has a great streak of winning teams and is still going strong.

C O A C H E S

Coach Bistline has the difficult task of turning the inexperienced lightweight basketball and the reserve football teams into future varsity material. Since assuming the duties as baseball coach three years ago, Bob Bistline has turned out two excellent teams. Under his careful tutelage some of the outstanding players on the team have developed into professional ball players.

In addition to training the lightweight football team, Coach Merickel was given the opportunity to coach the varsity basketball squad, and did surprisingly well by finishing the season with a .500 percentage. Coach Merickel's two years at Scott have added considerably to the strength of the coaching staff.

As track coach, Dave Brown is credited with having trained and coached a track squad that easily captured the city and district championships. For the third consecutive year Coach Brown's cross country team was considered the best in the state.

The minor sports, tennis, golf, and boxing, are coached by Thad Corbett, Glen Lake, and "Red" MacDonald, respectively.

F O O T B A L L G R I D I R O N G R E A T S

Finishing second place in the city league, a standing which they have achieved for the last two years, Scott's light and inexperienced football team, composed of only three lettermen, played excellent football throughout the entire season. Displaying a new type of shift, Scott was considered the best offensive team in the city. Scott won seven games, tied two, and their only defeat came in the last game of the season.

Scott began its 1936 football campaign in a satisfactory manner by hammering out a very impressive 18—6 triumph over the powerful Cleveland John Adams eleven in the newly lighted Scott stadium. In the first intra-city game, Scott and DeVilbiss played a 13—13 tie, despite the fine Scott offensive drives. Tackling Woodward in the next city tilt, Scott completely annihilated the Polar Bears 62—0, with every player on the team seeing action. In the first out-of-town game, the fighting Bulldogs stamped themselves as one of the most outstanding clubs of the state by a 24—2 victory over the strong Elyria eleven. Continuing their long string of victories, Scott High's speedy football team handed Dayton Stivers its first defeat of the season, beating that team 34—0 at Scott stadium. Looking like the Scott team of old, the green and white machine played their best game of the season against Stivers. In traveling to Fremont, the Scotters found that they had underestimated the strength of Coach Bob Oldfather's Fremont eleven. Leading 7—0 for three periods, Scott eased up in the final minutes of play, and the fighting Fremont team pushed across a touchdown, followed by a conversion to tie the score 7—7. Central Catholic was defeated by the terrific onslaught of the pounding Scott Bulldogs 32—13, who displayed the finest open-field running in many seasons. Scott journeyed to South Bend to tangle with James Whitcomb Riley High; Coach Rettig used many reserves for this game, and Scott finally emerged with a 14—0 victory. In the twenty-third annual Thanksgiving Day contest, Scott lost the last game of the season to the fighting Waite Indians 13—0.

Scott played good, clean football throughout the entire 1936 season, and although they did not capture the city championship, the student body feels proud of the fine work of their team.

Scott completely crushed the Woodward Polar Bears by the overwhelming score of 62—0. The Green and White's first and second teams ran wild against Woodward, passing and running for long gains at a time. Goldstein led the scorers with three touchdowns and a point after the touchdown, while Kemp made six consecutive placements. Adams, Brown, Bohnsack, Hoover, and Robarge also scored touchdowns. Scott exhibited a fine passing attack, completing all but three passes. Throughout the game, the Scott goal was not threatened once by the Polar Bears, who were unable to place the ball in Scott territory.

For the third consecutive year the Scott-DeVilbiss game ended in a tie. DeVilbiss staged a great comeback in the final minutes of the game to tie the score 13—13. In the first period Scott started a sixty-yard touchdown drive. Goldstein took the ball near his own goal, and with three perfect end runs carried the ball to the DeVilbiss fifteen. On a deceptive reverse Brown plunged through to score, Kemp converting. Two minutes later Luther scored for DeVilbiss. With Brown and Goldstein carrying the ball, Scott marched eighty-five yards to score. Again Luther took the ball at midfield, and ran to the goal unmolested to tie the score.

Scott again retained the "Little Brown Jug" by defeating the powerful Libbey Cowboys 13—7 in a hard-fought game in Libbey stadium. Displaying a fine passing attack, the Scotters advanced to the nine-yard line, from which Brown cut through his own right tackle to score. With less than a minute to play in the first half, Libbey scored on a long end run to tie the score 7—7. Led by Robarge, Scott started a substantial drive from deep in their own territory. With the ball on the ten-yard line, Goldstein shook himself loose from three tacklers back of the line of scrimmage and eluded the whole right side of the Libbey line to score the winning touchdown.

With a series of end runs, deceptive reverses, and fine open field running, the Scott Bulldogs easily defeated Central Catholic, the 1935 City Champions, by the pleasing score of 32—13. With the Green and White reserves playing the final quarter of the game, Central was able to push across two touchdowns. Playing his best game of the season, Robarge was the mainstay of both the Scott offense and defense. The most freakish play of the season occurred in this game. After Weis had broken through to block a Central punt, the ball went up into the air, bounced off two Irish helmets, and, as Stevens looked up, the ball fell into his hands, resulting in a touchdown.

At the bottom center is the Scott Band, led by Drum Major Winter, who stands at attention as the Waite Band marches by. At the left and right the Green and White machine displays its great defensive power.

Twelve thousand shivering fans saw the league-leading Scott High football team suffer its only defeat of the season in the twenty-third annual Thanksgiving Day game, overwhelmed by the powerful Waite eleven to the tune of 13-0. Waite's impressive victory, together with the DeVilbiss triumph over Libbey, enabled the burly Indians to capture the city championship. It had been expected that the lighter Green and White eleven would have a hard time stopping the power-house attack of the heavier Purple and Gold team, but it was the sensational passing attack of these amazing Indians that paved the way for their two touchdowns.

The first half ended in a scoreless tie. Waite scored early in the second half as a result of a sustained drive of forty-five yards. Bauman took the ball on the Scott forty-five, ran ten yards, and passed to the Waite end on the seventeen. The Waite backs alternately plunged through the line with Davies finally scoring, Bauman kicking the extra point.

Hoover took the kickoff on his own two-yard line and behind beautiful interference outstepped several would-be tacklers before he was run out of bounds on his own thirty-three yard line. Scott marched deep into Waite territory as Hoover and Brown gained consistently, only to lose the ball on downs as Waite's seven pillars of carborundum refused to be budged. The Indians took possession of the ball and combined their vaunted power plays with their surprise passing attack to travel down the field. Kohn, the Waite quarterback, plunged straight into the right side of the Scott line, emerging standing up, and ran unimpeded across the goal line for Waite's second score. The try for the extra point was wide. During the final quarter two brilliantly executed end runs by Idus Brown failed to penetrate the Waite defense and reach the promised land. With but a few minutes to play, Scott filled the air with passes in a last desperate attempt to score. Kohn intercepted one of these passes and raced to the Scott five-yard line. However, the game ended before Waite could score again.

LIGHTWEIGHT

Despite the fact that the lightweights placed second in the city league, they were a real threat to all opponents and managed to shove many teams from the first place position. Showing great drive in the city and out-of-town games, several lightweight men will occupy varsity berths next year. As Coach Merickel has been constantly training his team for future varsity use, next year the present lightweights will form a team that will be a real threat to the city championship.

Coach Brown's group of thinly-clads opened its 1936 indoor track schedule by trouncing the Woodward tracksters 85—15, capturing first place in every event except the shot-put. With little difficulty, Scott added the Libbey Cowboys to their list of track victims. Led by Walker, Scott amassed eighty-five points to Libbey's twenty. Walker ran the 65-yard low hurdles in the amazing time of 07.6 seconds to establish a new record. Scott retained its City Inter-Scholastic Indoor Track Championship by triumphing over DeVilbiss 62½—28½. Scott started slowly, and it was not until the conclusion of the sixth event that the Scotters were able to lead the Tigers. From then on the Maroon speedsters allowed their opponents only three points. The Scotters concluded the 1936 indoor track season by winning their fifth consecutive Toledo University track title. Scott was first with thirty-six points; Sandusky, second with twenty points. Coach Brown was highly satisfied with the fine showing of his indoor track team and feels confident that with the return of many veterans his 1937 team will continue to capture the City and University Championships.

During the season Scott competed against 232 teams and beat them all except Sandusky and Cleveland East Technical. In various meets East Technical has been met twice and Sandusky four times, with Scott splitting even in victories with each of these two schools. Scott was victorious in all the outdoor dual meets, easily defeating Woodward 63—45, Libbey 92—26, DeVilbiss 75—47, and Waite 82—18. Entering the Mansfield meet, Scott suffered its second defeat in three years, losing to Sandusky, whose team amassed forty-two points to Scott's thirty-five. Later they staged a comeback by eking out a 38—37 win over Sandusky. Tied with thirty-one points each at the close of the tenth event, Scott placed first in the high jump and third in the pole vault, while Sandusky won the pole vault and placed only fifth in the high jump. These extra two points cost the Blue Streaks the meet. With twenty-eight schools competing in the Salem High School Night Interscholastic Meet, Scott's track athletes emerged the winners with a total of $60\frac{5}{6}$ points. Co-Captains Kern and Walker were outstanding in the meet; the latter broke unofficially the 15.2 record for the high hurdles. In the second annual Ohio-Kentucky field meet held at Oxford, Ohio, Scott found little opposition, and the cinder path champions more than doubled the points earned by the second and third place teams. The Scott speedsters shattered two records when Walker established new marks in the broad jump and low hurdles. In the annual Northwestern Ohio District Meet, Coach Brown's track aggregation made a sweep of the sixteen events run off when the Maroon speedsters captured nine firsts, six seconds, and four thirds to total $97\frac{1}{2}$ points. This victory enabled the Scotters to retain the district championship and the opportunity to defend their state title at Columbus. Competing with fifty-five of the best track teams in the State of Ohio, Scott virtually lost its chance to place by making a poor showing in the preliminary heats. With only eight boys qualifying, Scott was able to place third with $23\frac{1}{2}$ points.

This closed the very successful 1936 season for the Maroon track squad, Scott winning every meet except the Mansfield and State meets. Coach Brown was highly pleased with this year's fine showing and believes his team will be able to place the State Championship Cup for 1937 in the Scott Trophy case.

Ten years ago Scott had not held a single city meet record, and in the 1926 Northwestern Ohio District meet the team finished fifth. But in Coach Brown's ten years as the Scott track coach, Scott has never lost a dual meet or been tied, having won forty-seven dual meets and losing none. Practically every boy on the team assumes responsibilities as a student, an athlete, and a gentleman in winning and losing.

At the left are pictures taken during the Northwestern Ohio District Meet. At the top the tracksters are lined up for the start of the half-mile run. Below this picture and to the left is McClure, Scott's excellent shot put man. The pole vaulter is O'Toole, who is shown clearing the bar with perfect form. In the center Adams noses out Fordham in a thrilling race in the 100-yard dash. At the left Smith of DeVilbiss makes a successful high jump, while at the right Hanna takes the lead in the mile run.

ON THE MAPLE

COURT

Starting with only four lettermen from a team which finished fifth in the city league last year, Coach Merickel, the Maroon and White's new basketball coach, had plenty of work before him in rounding up a contender for the city title. Weinman, Wearley, Kemp, and Tatum formed the nucleus around which Coach Merickel built his team. Opening the season with a series of games with out-of-town opponents, the inexperienced Scotters were unsuccessful, being defeated by Bellevue, Clay, and Bowling Green. Encountering Libbey in the first city game of the season, Scott was able to nose out the Cowboys in the final quarter to win 18—16. Although the Scotters played good basketball in the next three city games, they weakened in the closing minutes of each game and were defeated by small margins. Scott lost to the Woodward Polar Bears 24—19, and were downed by the Waite squad 27—26. Although Scott played splendid ball throughout the entire game, they were defeated by Central, who came from behind in the second half to win 33—28. In beginning the second round of the season, Scott managed to break its losing streak. Coach Merickel's men met the formidable Woodward Champions and pulled one of the biggest upsets of the season with a well-earned 32—27 victory over the Polar Bears, Kemp leading the scorers with fifteen points. Scott suffered two more defeats by losing to Central 31—22 and to Waite 44—36. In the final game of the season the team came into its own and easily downed DeVilbiss 46—23. Wearley alone scored nineteen points. In the first round of the Northwestern Ohio District Meet, held at Toledo University, Scott was defeated by Woodward 27—16. Although Scott did not capture the city title, no disgruntled fans were discovered, and the defeats were marked up as games played purely for experience.

The lightweight team, coached by Bob Bistline, was composed of such freshmen and sophomores as Steinberg, Keezer, Smith, Barnette, Heywood, and Douglas, who will be used in the future for the varsity team. In basketball, like football, the lightweights were used as a team to scrimmage against the varsity. The lightweights were victorious in every game except one, defeating Woodward, Libbey, Waite, Vocational, and DeVilbiss, and losing only to Bowling Green yearlings in a hard fought overtime game. With this lightweight team, together with the remaining varsity men, Coach Merickel believes that in 1938 he can form a team that will be a real threat in city competition.

B A S E B A L L

Scott opened its 1936 baseball season by swamping Whitmer in a double-header 11—0, 16—2. In both games the Bulldogs showed their hitting power, Hein leading the batters with two home-runs, a double, and four singles. With Davis allowing only four hits, Scott had little difficulty in disposing of Vocational 7—1. The Scott nine received its first setback of the season, as Woodward nosed out the Scotters 7—6 in the final innings of the game. Pitching his usual steady brand of ball, Jennings, together with the excellent support of his team-mates, was able to down the fighting Irish of Central High by the score of 4—2. In the longest and best played game of the entire season, Scott eked out a 3—1 victory over Libbey, as Jennings fanned seventeen batters in ten innings. Scott established itself as a real threat for the championship by trimming the classy Waite squad 9—6. With Scott playing errorless ball, St. John fell easy prey to the slugging Scott nine, 8—2. However, the "final game jinx" struck the Bulldogs in their final city game with DeVilbiss for the city championship. Playing this game in Swayne field before two thousand fans, the Scott nine experienced a case of "jitters" and played their first poor game of the season, losing 16—5 to the Tigers. In the two post season games Scott lost one game and won one game. Scott made its game with Clay a track meet, walloping the Clay squad 11—2. In concluding the 1936 season Scott was defeated by Blissfield 2—1, and Coach Bistline still will be looking for a championship team in 1937.

Flath and Furman lead the pack in the Northwestern Ohio District Meet at Ottawa Park.

C R O S S C O U N T R Y

For the third consecutive year the Scott Cross Country Team won the city and district championship and the state championship, which is run each year in Columbus. With only four veterans and many members of the lightweight squad, Coach Brown formed the 1936 Cross Country Team. Composed of Furman, Flath, Smith, Paul, Klag, Cook, Hunker, and Perkins, the Scott hedge-hoppers had the strongest team in the entire state.

In the first two meets Scott defeated the DeVilbiss harriers 50—15, and Bryan 45—16. In the Bryan meet, Captain Furman completed the course in ten minutes and fifty-five seconds. In the DeVilbiss tilt Furman placed first and lowered Kern's 1935 record. With Furman again leading the Scotters to victory, the Maroon harriers easily downed Libbey 47—18 and DeVilbiss 45—20. Since no other schools entered cross country teams in the city league, Scott automatically became the city champions. For the fourth consecutive year the Scott cross country team emerged the victors of the Northwestern Ohio District Meet held at Ottawa Park. At Columbus the Scott hedge-hoppers retained the state championship for the third consecutive year. Although no Scott runner placed in the first ten, Furman, Mason, Hunker, Flath, and Smith finished between tenth and twenty-fifth places.

This was a very successful season for the puddle-jumpers, and afterwards many of these fine athletes became members of the Scott indoor track squad.

The American League Bowling Team composed of Montgomery, Freeman, Blank, Phillips, and Dittman.

I N T R A M U R A L S

This year much progress was made in the intramurals at Scott. Under the direction of "Red" McDonald, Scott's newest coach, a large program of intramurals was planned in order to give many boys an opportunity to compete against themselves and to gain proficiency in a desired sport. To start this huge program, two basketball leagues were established. The teams in the Eastern Conference, consisting of juniors and seniors, were the Bears, Celtics, Wolverines, Fighting Irish, Senior Hi-Y, and the Bulldogs. The Senior Hi-Y won the title in the Eastern Conference by winning six games and losing none. The Bears finished second with five wins and two defeats, and the Celtics third with three wins and equal number of defeats. The teams in the Western League, composed of freshmen and sophomores, were Minnesota, Indiana, Ohio, Purdue, Northwestern, and Michigan. The Minnesota team was victorious in eight games and was awarded the championship, while Purdue was the runner-up with seven wins and one defeat.

In the early fall volley ball became a popular sport, and Coach McDonald organized a volley ball league. Twelve teams entered the league, and the Jeeps, composed of seniors, were awarded the championship after winning thirteen straight games. The Jeeps were recognized as the outstanding volley ball team of the city by defeating the volley ball teams of Waite and Libbey.

The popularity of boxing this year was demonstrated by the turnout of boys for competition in the manly art of self-defense. Several members of the team were entered in the Y. M. C. A. boxing tournament, and Speights won the lightweight title.

Two outstanding teams, coached by Mr. Sutter, represented Scott in the Blade City Bowling League. These teams were always a threat to other league leaders, and many times they were able to forge ahead to the first place position. The players in the National League were Bailey, Sutkus, Weissenberger, Sheats, Cohn, Arft. The American League was composed of Blank, Phillips, Montgomery, Knowles, Furman, Dittman, Fess. Weissenberger and Arft were the outstanding bowlers in the National League, and Phillips and Blank upheld this honor in the American League.

S W I M M I N G

The aquatic squad of this year was one of Scott's most successful swimming teams that have been seen in several years. Composed of such veterans as Captain Vinnedge, the holder of many state free style records, Tallman, a forty-yard free styler, and the experienced back stroker Douds, the Scott natators won five of the seven meets, being defeated in the Northwestern Ohio District Meet by Sandusky, the 1936 State Champions. Journeying to Monroe, Scott began the season by easily downing Monroe 47—28. Led by Captain Vinnedge, Scott won both relays, the 220 and 40-yard free style, and the diving events. In this meet Douds established an unofficial record for the 100-yard back stroke. Meeting Adrian High in the Scott pool, the Scotters had little difficulty in disposing of that team 58—8. In a return engagement with Monroe the Scott squad suffered its first defeat of the season 41—36. Both relays, which were taken by Monroe, proved to be the deciding events of the meet. Showing surprising speed and skill, the Scotters defeated the Waite squad 52—14, Gustafson and Swartzbaugh establishing new records in the 100-yard free style. Tackling DeVilbiss and Waite in a dual meet, the Maroon natators overwhelmed their two city opponents by capturing six out of the seven first places. Vinnedge, Tallman, Douds, and Flowers were the high scorers of the season and will be lost by graduation; but the prospects are good for a winning team next year with the presence of a fine freshman squad. They will give the varsity a stiff battle for a place on the team.

Our Student Council is composed
Of various commissions,
Which give the students hall-permits,
Subpoenas, and petitions.
Money is most valuable,
And most folks do begrudge it,
But no one spends so much as our
Commission of the budget.
'Tis fun to watch our scribble-ers,
As hopefully they scratch
Their heads in search of new ideas,
Their write-ups for to patch.
As you have probably discerned
Through powers of deduction,
This verse does bring these things to you
Just as an introduction.

Top Row—George Newton and Robert Linker, Betty Seiss and Betty Lee Rosenberry, Martin Parcel and Don Tarshis, Violet Davis and William Cook, Robert Kimener and Jack Wilhelm. Bottom Row—Harold Scheer and Joseph Fink, Jeanne Bargey and Babette Baker, James Hausman and Mabel Greene, Gertrude Krannic and Margaret Chesebrough, Ruth Lowry and Arthur Milstein.

Work on the Scottonian was started last summer, when the nucleus of the staff met frequently to select the remaining members and to plan the book. Following the opening of school came months of toil that were broken only by occasional parties and the annual National Scholastic Press Association in Detroit, which was attended by most of the editors.

Aleck Borman, editor-in-chief, capably guided the Scottonian toward its publication, while George Newton aided him in the management. The feature section was under the command of James Hausman and Mabel Greene, his assistant; Jim used his own camera to take all his pictures and he paneled them as well. The faculty editor was Margaret Chesebrough; while Babbette Baker, assisted by Jeanne Bargy, rendered the clever pages devoted to the graduating class. Joseph Fink, with Harold Scheer assisting, furnished the book with sports writeups; and Martin Parcel did likewise with the organizations, aided by Don Tarshis. Ruth Lowry edited the classes section; Mary Jane Murphy wrote the quips for her pages. Gertrude Krannich served as typist and Robert Kimener as photographer.

The financial department of the Scottonian was led by Norman Kripke, business manager, aided by Violet Davis, Robert Linker, and William Cook. Gus Shure, art editor, made all of the layouts, contributing many drawings and original ideas. He was assisted by Arthur Milstein. Rose Teitlebaum and Peter Hoffman contributed nearly all of the sketches, and their work has aided considerably toward making this book distinctive. The intricate task of paneling was carried on by Betty Lee Rosenberry, panel editor, and her assistant, Betty Seiss.

The work of these departments was accomplished under the tireless supervision of our advisers. Miss Humphrey guided the literary work; Mr. Roe, the general adviser, loaned his services to the finances and photography; and Miss Morgan gave her loyal cooperation to the art department.

The Scottonian Board also wishes to express its gratitude to the following persons for the aid they have given: Mr. Welday, Mr. Mater, Mr. Lake, and Mr. Fankhauser.

In the Thistle, bi-weekly student publication, are recorded the humor, pathos, and drama of Scott, its people and its activities. This, the best city school newspaper by virtue of the award of the Alpha Phi Gamma fraternity plaque for the past two years, is to be commended on its excellent journalistic portrayal of Scott student life.

T H I S T L E

A free, one-page edition of the Scott Thistle, distributed on the first day of school, re-opened activities and advertised the subscription system through which Thistles were sold this year. Besides Thistle news and feature articles, the popularity of Scott Shots, written by the mysterious Stanley, Thistle Pricks, and cartoons, handled alternately by Peter Hoffman and Gus Shure, drew 1100 subscribers first semester. Ads, solicited by Manager Jane Le Sueur and her assistants, Mary Shoched, Willa Volk, and Ruth Glauser, helped Business Manager Donald Guentert and Adviser R. S. Weiser to balance accounts.

A junior addition to the writing staff, headed a second year by Virginia Wiener, was Sam Shopneck, sports editor, who had Eugene Dautell, Robert Druitt, and Bob Broer to help him cover the field and gymnasium floor.

To gain permanently the plaque awarded by Alpha Phi Gamma fraternity by winning it a third time as Toledo's best high school newspaper was a minor ambition of the editorial staff. An interview with John Mason Brown, New York dramatic critic, won for Associate Editor Eleanor Nathanson her second consecutive loving cup for the best feature story in the state. This award was made at the Journalism Association of Ohio Schools convention, attended by the literary adviser, Miss Mary Perkins.

At the N. S. P. A. convention in Detroit, Miss Perkins supervised a discussion of circulation, with Virginia Wiener acting as student chairman.

Richard Peckinpaugh

The Scott High Student Council is the commission type of government. It is composed of a president, vice president, and secretary of the Student Council, commissioners and their assistants, and representatives elected by each home room. This representative group is advised by the principal, a director of extra-curricular activities, a director of social activities, and a teacher for each commission.

Richard Peckinpaugh, president, and William Pickett, vice president, at the beginning of school together named the heads of various commissions.

The Publicity Commission was headed by Georgia Boyer, whose assistant was Jim Benschoter. It handled all notices on hall bulletin boards, supplied city newspapers with school publicity, and provided Scott publications with material concerning the work of the Student Council. The importance of this commission lies in the fact that it controls the distribution of all posters, bulletins, notices, and general publicity that affects every student at Scott.

To promote good manners and proper conduct among students, and to arrange for cultural and recreational assemblies is the duty of The Social Commission. Through the efforts of Joe McClanathan and Betty Basch, Courtesy Week influenced Scotters to show and sustain improvement of courtesy at all times.

The Organizations Commission has charge of all school elections and keeps statistics of all Scott clubs, their officers and activities. Alice Eppstein and Jane Graham managed the elections of officers of four classes and the members of the Student Council.

Nelson Rodeheaver and his assistant directed The Citizenship Commission. Their work included supervision of the hall patrol, assistance with fire drills, and prevention of destruction of school property.

The "G-Man" of Scott was Edward Doerman, who with Richard Schliebner headed The Commission of Justice. This commission has the power to subpoena any Scott student for any action which a member of this organization shall deem to be offensive to the health, morals, or general welfare of Scott students or faculty. The offending member is then tried in the student court, where a record is kept of all proceedings. The effectiveness of this commission is greatly increased by having open trials.

Katharine Swartzbaugh and Alice Lee were in charge of The Welfare and Service Commission. The duties of this commission included assisting with all welfare projects at Scott and helping with student records in the department of activities.

The Boys' Athletic Commission assisted Mr. Meissner, director of athletics, with various phases of the work of the physical education department. This commission was directed by Edward Arenson and Jean Lewis. Taking care of intramural activities and planning athletic assemblies were some of the things done by this group.

The Finance and Budget Commission was headed by Melvin Weinman and John Alspach.

One home room representative is elected from each home room and four are elected from each large study hall. They, by direct contact with the Student Council and the student body, present for discussion all proposed amendments, council suggestions, and matters of general interest. They then report their findings to the proper commission.

Mr. Demorest, principal, reappointed Mr. Kirk and Mrs. Meffly director of extra-curricular activities and director of social activities, respectively. It was Mr. Kirk whose organizing work started the Student Council on its way this year. Under the direction of both Mrs. Meffly and Mr. Kirk, the Scott form of student government continued its unfailing, invaluable, praiseworthy work.

OH, MONEY, MONEY!!!

Balancing Budgeteers . . . This is what they call all thirteen members of the Finance and Budget Commission, which this year was headed by Melvin Weinman and advised by Mr. R. J. Langstaff. The duty of this organization is to manage school finances. All money that exchanges hands for student activities is duly recorded and accredited by the commission's treasurer. Some of the transactions which the commission must supervise are the sale of tickets for club dances, parties, games, pay assemblies, and recording of club dues. Although outside of their duty, the commission sponsors many affairs which are both interesting and amusing.

Tickets were sold each semester for a series of talking pictures shown in the auditorium. An African lecturer, Hayes Perkins, spoke to an interested audience about African life, customs, and animals. A super sleight-of-hand artist, Marquis the Magician, mystified

Scotters by his tricks and illusions performed with cards and sundry props. The most interesting speaker of the year was Mr. Duckett, a blind man, who demonstrated the diversified talents of his "seeing eye"—a beautiful police dog.

In order to advertise coming events, the commission employed a public address system, which was operated by Dick Rosenberry and John Alspach. Other school improvements installed by the commission were the auditorium drapes and a pay post for the auditorium floor.

Each year juniors are elected who are acquainted with the organization and work of the commission. The following year these juniors carry on for the sake of the commission. The "balancing budgeteers" for the year of 1936-7 were Melvin Weinman (Commissioner), John Alspach (Assistant), Marjorie Swick, Dorothy Green, Sylvia Mostov, Eliot Meisel, Eleanor Martin, Margaret Jean Beat, Janet Urich, William Schomburg, Lois Arndt (Secretary), Suzanne Seeger, and Dick Rosenberry.

May Master Minds. . . . Early one chilly May morning, thirty intelligent people representing Scott piled into automobiles and rode the approximate thirty miles to Bowling Green. As they entered the stately structures of the Bowling Green State University all heads and hopes were high. Many hopes, but not heads, fell as the students were handed the test that was being taken all over the state by other high school students. After one hour of pencil working the test-takers retired from their positions and returned home. All day and night they eagerly awaited the returns. Early the next morning the long awaited news arrived; Scott High School, first in the district. With the arrival of this news, only half the worry was over as the State was, as yet, unheard from. A week later the State results were announced: Scott had placed fourth in this state and had again won a position in the first ten of the city schools in Ohio, as it had every preceding year.

One of the outstanding members of the scholarship team was Margherita Leslie, who won Scott's only first place in the state. She defeated all her opponents in tenth year English. Robert Hedler also represented the Scott English department well by gaining fourth place in the twelfth year English. The physics team was the only team to place both members in the state: Ted Merkle was seventh and Richard Hartman was tenth. Other places in the state were taken by Beatrice Borman, sixth in first year Latin; Perrie Brown, sixth in general science; Arthur Ginsburg, seventh in plane geometry; William Rowen, seventh in chemistry; Richard Hughes, ninth in first year French; William Williams, ninth in first year algebra; and Fern Lepold, tenth in second year Latin. State honorable mentions were received by Edward Ebert, Marie Konczal, Marshall Jacobs, and Aleck Borman.

The achievements of the 1936 scholarship team should be a worthy goal at which future scholarship teams may aim.

Great Achievements, Greater Aims . . . The Scott Chapter of the National Honor Society, chartered in 1932, is composed of outstanding people in school selected on a basis of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Appointments are made by a committee of teachers who act as final judges of the merits of prospective candidates.

The requirements of the National Honor Society are extremely high. One must rank in the upper third of his class in scholarships, must show some traits of leadership, must be possessed of an unblemished character, and must have rendered service in the classrooms or to the school directly in order to be so fortunate as to belong to this organization. Near the end of the school year, not more than ten per cent of the graduating class are inducted, and about a dozen ranking juniors are elected to carry on the work for the following year.

The main work of this group is to promote interest in colleges. Several meetings were devoted to this end. One result of these meetings was an assembly held in Scott High auditorium, in which attending students were given information concerning various particulars of college requirements. They also distributed letters of congratulation to all students in Scott who achieved honor roll rating, which requires a minimum of all B's in major subjects on semester averages.

Each member of the Honor Society is allowed the privilege of wearing the gold pin which is the official recognition of membership. These pins have on them the name of the society together with the flaming torch of knowledge. It is this torch which, with its ever burning flame, inspires its bearers who have already won great achievements, to greater aims.

LETTER GIRLS

Bearers of the "S" Proud possessors of that sacred symbol of distinguished athletic activity in Scott sports are the members of the Girls Letter Club. These wearers of the "S," once a member, do not cease active participation in sports. On the contrary, they must take a more active part in sports in order to aid in maintaining their motto, "To promote athletics for all girls in Scott."

In order to obtain a letter, a girl must earn a certain number of points. She does this by passing tests in her proficiency of volleyball, basketball, softball, high jumping, reaching so high, and keeping a health card. Additional points are gained by competing in hockey, archery, tennis, swimming, life-saving, and bowling. Chevrons are awarded to girls who have a letter, but who have an additional year or years of athletic participation enough to fulfill requirements for a letter. One letter and three chevrons are a complete record of four years' activity in Scott Girls' athletics.

The big event of the year for these girls was the annual coed ball given by the club for all Scott girls. As this was a costume affair, prizes were awarded for the most unique and odd attire. Another successful affair was the skating party held in November. Although some attending had more downs than ups, the party was a huge success and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Under the guiding influence of Mrs. Gehring, this organization is doing well their job of interesting girls in everyday athletics. We believe that many girls would enjoy school more if they took part in sports and became members of this active group. Ending its fifteenth year as an athletic association, these girls continue to be "bearers of the 'S'."

"Music hath powers . . ." Music has not only the power to sooth savage breasts, but also the power to instill in civilized hearts the desire to produce beautiful music and to learn of musical history and theory. Students in Scott who wish to make these gains join the organization designed especially for them—the Scott Orchestra.

Under the skillful and talented direction of Miss Bessie Werum, the orchestra promoted several noteworthy activities. They accompanied the Glee Club in the operetta, "Jerry of Jericho Road." This task required weeks of intensive practice and preparation, which none but the members themselves can appreciate. Soon after this they gave a concert, in which solos were played by Martin Ulmer, violinist, Dan Kasle, pianist, and Winifred Graves and Stewart Schulmeyer, flutists. Another concert was given for the students of Scott later in the year, and still another for a Parent-Teachers Association meeting. The Scott orchestra, under the direction of a guest conductor, played an important part in the annual May Festival this year.

In order to put into practice their purpose "To create an interest in the knowledge of contemporary musical history," the students gave talks on current events which pertained to music; all symphonies, concerts, and recitals held in and around Toledo were discussed. A knowledge of harmony, which is essential to the proper rendition of any orchestration, was imparted to Scott's musicians by Miss Werum, who gave at least one lecture a week on the subject.

Scott's scale scholars this year have been given an unusual opportunity to increase their musical knowledge both in practice and theory by participation in concerts and by study under skillful direction. They have played their parts well; may their melody linger on.

"Strike up the Band!" With this command from Drum Major Douglas Winter, accompanied by the blast of a whistle, Scott High's band marched and maneuvered, playing brisk martial airs for thousands of enthusiastic football rooters. Superiority in both playing and marching was achieved through countless hours of hard practice, directed by Mr. Sutphen and his son, Guy Sutphen.

The band filled the air with its invigorating, spine-tingling music at pep meetings this year. It was the stirring marches that keyed the players and students alike up to the fever pitch needed for this sort of assembly. Ever present at basketball games, too, was our band under direction of Edward Hathaway, student leader.

One of the several programs presented by this organization included only band talent. Solos were given by Edward Hathaway, James Rohr, and Loren Harrison. Another assembly included Paul Spor, veteran entertainer, a highly original accordion trio, and a trick cyclist. Other activities given late in the year included a dance, concert, and mass assembly.

Special mention must be given to Douglas Winter, Drum Major, for his splendid strutting during band maneuvers. The climaxing performance of his dextrous baton came at the final night football game, when he presented a whirling stick of fire in an array of tricks that brought cheering thousands to their feet.

The Scott band, a necessity in our organization, ends its sixteenth active year as we continue to boom out our praises for it.

Beat the Faculty! . . . This rallying cry echoed and reechoed through the halls as the Peiupers prepared to defend their honor in the fourth annual basketball game with the faculty. This game was the big event of the year for the Peiuper Club, which is one of the outstanding clubs at Scott from the standpoint of activity and service to the school.

The whistle blows and the game is on! Delighted howls come from the crowd as the Peiuper Club draws first blood. Fouls abound, but are forgotten, as the whistle cannot be heard above the tremendous roars from the crowd. The teachers shoot from the middle of the court and make baskets as effortlessly as the ink flows from a new pen. The second half was cut short by the bell, as the Peiuper Club fought grimly to stand off faculty rallies. The final score was 23—16 in favor of the Peiuper Club. This tied the series of games at two each.

Among the other activities sponsored by this organization was the "Halloween Frolic," a mask dance, at which students danced to the latest swing tunes under a canopy of black and orange decorations in the Scott gym. Prizes were awarded to the couples who were most expertly and uniquely dressed. At the meetings, which were conducted at the T. J. F. building, guest speakers gave inspirational talks. The meetings were closed with entertainment, given by the more talented members.

The name "Peiuper," which means Progress, has been truly symbolic of the activities of this club. Forging steadily ahead on three fronts—educational, social, and athletic—it has progressed steadily until now it is recognized as one of the most active groups in Scott.

Practical Dreamers. Men who dream of practical things, who plan and build them, are our engineers. The Scott Engineering Society is composed of those boys who wish, some day, to follow in the footsteps of our present-day builders.

This club is one of the oldest in Scott. It was founded in 1916 for this purpose: "To further the study of engineering beyond that obtainable in high school." To this ultimate end the club has worked diligently. The club's motto for the year was "In vestigia scientiae sequitur homo." (Man follows in the footsteps of knowledge.)

To record this year's activities, the club's annual scrap book was kept by the members. All paper clippings pertaining to the club were pasted in the book, which will be added to the twenty-one other volumes now in the possession of the club. Jerome Freedman, in editing the Engineers' paper, The Scott Transit, also helped record the activities of 1937.

The club has had many interesting trips. Among the places visited were the Libbey Owens Ford Glass Co., the Willys Overland plant, the Toledo Auto Stamping establishment, and the Doehler Die Casting Co.

The club members who did not go on field trips, but who attended meetings held at Scott, had their technical knowledge expanded by the help of experienced lecturers.

One of the many authorities was Mr. Sheder, a representative of Schmidlin Bros., who talked on air conditioning. Certain members also told the club about subjects upon which the speakers were well informed.

The club won first prize in the Scott Christmas basket decorating contest. Their entry was a cardboard radio station filled, not with actors, but with food.

We feel that the Engineering Society has the right to be very proud of its beneficial 1937 program.

Get Acquainted! . . . Freshmen girls entering Scott timidly and wonderingly immediately join the Freshmen Friendship Club, which starts them on a four-year course in Friendship. In this course the major objective for the members is to get acquainted, not only with each other, but with Scott, its principles, and its functions.

Under the direction of Miss Helen Fields, adviser, the Freshmen Friendship Club girls were given their first lessons in becoming acquainted with each other. The purpose of the club, "To have world-wide friendship," functioned, as "charity begins at home," when a mammoth basket of fruit was delivered to an old woman shut-in, and old soldiers were entertained and cheered by the enthusiastic girls. Once the club was fully organized, activities took place with a rapidity and smoothness of presentation that would have done credit to upper-classmen.

The party at the orphanage was a marked success, as was shown by the delighted looks on the faces of the orphans. The peace program, the splash party, and the many forums gave all the members a chance to participate in one major activity. Looking to the future, the Freshmen Friendship Club had a speaker give a talk on colleges. Miss Wisely, librarian, spoke at one meeting, explaining the functions of the Scott Library. By the assortment of dishes at the potluck dinner, one would be amazed at the culinary talents of these girls.

Working in peace and harmony toward a common aim, the fifty-four members of the club strive "To face life squarely and find and give the best." At the end of their first year the Freshmen Friendship Club can well look forward to three more years of ever-broadening lanes of friendship.

"A Friend in Need Is a Friend Indeed." With this idea in mind, the Sophomore Friendship Club began its second year course of friendship to people in and around Scott. So well were the fundamental principles of friendship learned last year, that the club functioned even before the advent of school by sponsoring two activities: a boat trip to Cedar Point, and a garden party at the River Road home of Mrs. Schnell.

The first activity of the semester was a "Get Acquainted" roast and party for all sophomore girls. Following this, the girls held an assembly in the Scott auditorium with Mrs. Snduk Pak of Korea as guest speaker. She spoke on a few of the aspects of November, World Fellowship Month.

When the club found Thanksgiving approaching and at the same time found a family of ten in want, they "went into action." A large basket filled with food was prepared, decorated, garnered with the good wishes of the members, and then sent to the needy family. Not satisfied with this one gesture of friendship to Toledo, these sophomore girls entertained women of Sunset Home at Christmas. At that time, a playlet was presented, a mock meeting held, and songs were sung.

The miscellaneous activities that were held during the year were as follows: Hi-Y-Friendship clubs dance at the Y. M. C. A., spring banquet for all Friendship clubs in the city, mothers' tea at which rings were presented to members, and the sale of "Get-all" spoons as a money making project.

At the half-way mark of the four-year course in friendship, these girls pause not, for each will do her part to carry on the principles of friendship, guidance, and service.

Service to Others. . . . The Junior Friendship Club began the third year of "service to others" by sponsoring a Christmas party for the third grade at the Miami Children's Home. Although no one impersonated Santa Claus, the little tots were made completely happy by gifts of candy, toys, books, and clothing. So well did these children captivate the girls' fancy that another party was given for them on Valentine's Day, and yet another on May Day.

There were two field trips taken by these active girls. The trip to WSPD, Toledo Broadcasting Station, was a very delightful one. Although the club members displayed complete ignorance when shown the intricate maze of tubes, wires, and switches of the control room, they knew that the microphone was the thing through which Bing Crosby crooned so divinely. At the Driggs Dairy, the scene of the second trip, the members were surrounded with products with which they were more familiar. So at home did they look and feel, that the management gave them sample ice cream, which was promptly declared the best of all Driggs products.

At the meetings held at Scott, several speakers were invited to address the members. Mrs. Germain Eruasquin, a Scott teacher, talked on her experiences abroad and more specifically in Spain. Among the others who gave talks were Mrs. Leo March and Mrs. Margaret Slater, policewoman.

Splash parties are an annual part of the activities of the Junior Friendship Club, and this year was no exception. Water sharpens one's appetite, and it was at one of these splash parties that ideas materialized which led to the numerous roasts and spreads held.

Concluding the third year as friendly aids to Scott, the girls look eagerly forward to an even more active year of service and activities.

Steadfast Friendships. After having devoted four years to the promotion and development of the art of making friends, it is not at all surprising that the Senior Friendship Club girls have founded many "steadfast friendships."

This club continued the traditional services for which Friendship clubs are famous. The first aid rendered was to make mittens from old clothes and send them to children in Colorado. These mittens received the benefit of last year's knitting craze when they were trimmed with gay colored yarn. Another project completed for the benefit of others was the making of scrap books for crippled children. Cutting, pasting, and lettering these books gave the girls as much pleasure as the children got by receiving them.

Alternate meetings of the Senior Friendship Club are held in the homes of different girls. This sort of meeting ends when all the food, brought together by a pot-luck arrangement, has disappeared. At these meetings and those held in school, the girls learn camp and Y. W. C. A. songs. When they think they have mastered the various trills, sharps, and flats, they begin to sing as a group, unleashing such splendid renditions as to make rival glee clubs green with envy.

A splash party for all the Friendship Clubs at Scott was given with an inevitable result. There were too many girls present to allow room for swimming, but they did get further acquainted with each other while splashing about.

Although this is the last year that all of these girls will be together, we feel certain that each, in turn, will act as a personal bearer of the true Friendship Club spirit. Therefore, we trust that these "steadfast friendships" you have made may remain unbroken "even until death do you part."

At the Top. . . . Climbing to the top of the ladder where, it is said by many, perfection is achieved, the boys who have successfully upheld the purpose of the Hi-Y club for three years form the nucleus of the Senior Hi-Y. In joining this organization the boys adopt the group's creed. They have faith in their school and in the principles on which its activities are based. They recognize here the opportunity to develop wholesome and friendly relations with fellow students. They respect the teachers and appreciate the services the faculty renders.

During the year the club has had splash parties and pot-lucks. The annual party, at the Y-Camp Storer, was a howling success. The group also aided in the Hi-Y Friendship forums, which are discussions on current important topics.

These boys, who will be our future citizens, believe in God and in the right of free worship. They would encourage everyone to participate in some type of religious activity of his own choice. Their ideals of religion will not permit any discrimination because of race, creed, or social standing.

Going out into our dizzy world, these boys pledge themselves to honor their homes and families. They promise to promote honesty on every occasion. They wish that happiness might abound everywhere. They vow to do their tasks and above all to help "maintain and extend throughout school and community high standards of Christian character."

If more boys graduating from high school had the same high aims as our Senior Hi-Y boys, this world would be a far, far better place in which to live.

Up the Ladder. The Junior Hi-Y, organized three years ago, has the admirable purpose "To create and maintain and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character." It has upheld this purpose by the presentation of a well balanced program of social, educational, and athletic activities in and outside of Scott.

Meeting every Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. building under the guidance of Mr. Roemer, the club has heard many interesting speakers. It was at these gatherings that the thirty-five hard working members planned all activities. One of the results of these plans was the dance sponsored jointly by the club and the Junior Friendship girls. The ideas for the numerous splash parties held were all developed at the meetings. The gastronomic endeavors of these hardy lads were prominently displayed at the annual pot-luck dinner held at the Y. M. C. A. The rapidity at which the food disappeared amazed even the members themselves.

The club entered five boys in the city league of Junior Hi-Y Clubs to represent them in basketball. These boys showed their mettle by defeating all comers and gave to the club the city championship.

An interesting sidelight on the year's activities was the unique way in which the treasury was enlarged. The stronger, more valiant members served as professional pall-bearers. The money garnered in this way plus that collected for dues was spent for thick, warm sweaters which displayed the club emblem on manly chests.

This growing organization has one more year to be together and to render service to the school and community. Banded together by the motto "Clean Athletics, Clean Scholarship, Clean Living," the Junior Hi-Y has shown itself to be one of the truly progressive groups at Scott.

Over the Sea to You. . . . To cultivate the romantic and musical language of sunny Spain and to encourage its correct conversational use is the primary objective of "El Circulo Espanol", which was organized eight years ago under the guiding influence of Miss Canniff. The organization, which was then named "Los Aceros Castellanos," has since increased its activities until now, in pursuit of this aim, guest speakers address the club meetings, correspondence with students in Spain is encouraged, and a Spanish newspaper is published.

The interesting meetings of this group are conducted in Spanish, in order that the members may have an opportunity to use the language socially. During the last year, three Scott teachers who have travelled through Spanish speaking countries, related their adventures to the club. The adviser of the organization, Miss Canniff, who visited Spain in 1930, spoke on the beauty of the country and illustrated her address with interesting pictures. Mrs. Erausquin, who was recently ensnared in the turmoil of the Spanish Revolution, and was fortunate enough to escape uninjured, talked about her exciting experience, emphasizing throughout her speech the genial hospitality of the natives. The members visited the Ucatan when Miss Staadecker told about her trip through Central America.

In view of the linguistic accomplishments of this active group, it was fitting that it be selected to present a program representative of its work before a meeting of the parents at Scott's "Back to School Night."

The club continued its policy of publishing a newspaper in Spanish during the school year. This paper is El Charlador (The Chatterer) and is published occasionally at the price of two cents per copy. James Froom was the editor, and had, as assistants, the members of the organization.

Parlez-vous Francais? The answer to this query made to any member of the French Club is an emphatic Oui! In its first year under its new adviser, Miss Butler, Le Circle Francais sponsored many interesting activities. French, the only language permitted, flowed fluently during all club meetings. On several occasions selections from Debussy and other French composers were played by Daniel Kasle. During other gatherings French songs and popular American songs, translated into French, were sung. Discussions on French educational and political situations were held.

The most memorable meeting of the club was held at Christmas time. A humorous French folk play was staged. Richard Corsa played Santa Claus, hired by a rich man to deliver presents to his house. Santa Claus mistook the address and delivered them to a poor man's family. A happy ending resulted when the rich man, realizing the need of the poor people, allowed the presents to remain with them. As it was generally conceded that listening to a play in a foreign language does not hurt one's appetite, ice cream and cake were served. Under the influence of the prevalent Christmas spirit, the members added a decorated basket to the annual Scott contributions to the poor.

The club inaugurated the system of limiting the membership to second, third, and fourth year French students. The first year students were organized into a junior Le Circle Francais.

This club was founded in 1929, giving it a record of eight years of unbroken activity. The club has upheld its purpose, D'etudier La France, Ses Coutumes, et Sa Culture. (To study France, its customs and culture.)

Le Circle Francais ends its meeting by singing the Marseillaise, but we will end by wishing them good luck in 1938.

Live and Learn. The members of the Science Club "live and learn" to promote their club purpose, "To create scientific interests." There were several ways in which this was done. Among them were to take field trips, for the purpose of first hand information, to invite authoritative speakers for lectures and demonstrations, and to attend meetings to promote science generally.

One of the field trips taken was to the Eckhardt Monument Company where the members stood enthralled, amid deafening noises, while the names of deceased persons were cut into solid rock. Not at all dismayed by the ominous business they were watching, the members enjoyed learning about the life of a tombstone from mining to erection. The Lakeside Biscuit Company was the scene of another visit. The process of making cookies, pastries, and tid-bits was viewed with ever increasing enthusiasm which was climaxed when they were presented with samples of the company's products. Another trip included visiting the Bureau of Entomology where sundry bugs and insects—dead and alive—were studied.

Among the speakers who addressed the club were Dr. Kuehn, who spoke on "Infantile Paralysis," and Mr. Campbell, who talked on birds. Dr. Kuehn covered the subject thoroughly from the prevention to the results of the dreaded disease. Included in Mr. Campbell's talk were special parts devoted to the habits, traits, and ways to distinguish the many varieties and species.

Alternate meetings of programs and business were held every Thursday in school, with student speakers often providing the entertainment. Arthur Ginsburg and Jack Wilhelm collaborated on a talk about photography. This among other talks, business, and discussions constituted the main proceedings.

These future scientists, under the advisership of Miss Krueger, have participated in an active year full of the promotion of constructive and instructive events.

Prospective proponents of painting If one of the great artists of the early future relates with praise his affiliation with the present Scott Art Club, such a remembrance will arise from the superior accomplishments of this organization. The members have dedicated their efforts to the stimulation of art appreciation at Scott and, in pursuing this aim, have discovered realms of knowledge and entertainment.

The club has flavored its meetings with talks by many interesting speakers. Two Scott teachers, Miss Refior and Mrs. Dean, spoke on modern trends in clothes and a sketching tour through Europe. Miss Ruth Knapp, from the Toledo Museum of Art, Bill Smith, former Scott student, and Gus Shure, Scottonian art editor, were other guest speakers. The organization also held a debate on art and devoted one meeting to educational art games. A joyous party at the studio of Mrs. Dean, the adviser, concluded the season.

One does not need to have art talent to become a member of the Scott Art Club, but may apply for admission with only a desire to acquire a cultural background or an appreciation of art. However, those students who would become members discover that their transition from the status of a mere pledge to that of a full-fledged member must be marked by an initiation planned by the higher artists. At two such initiations, during the past year, new members swelled the personnel of the club.

We feel that, if those students associated with this active organization, heed the sound advice that they have acquired through its functions and profit by the ever present examples of great art, there will be some former members of the nineteen thirty-seven Scott Art Club whose achievements will be duly recognized and honored by the accredited art connoisseurs of the entire world.

"The Play's the Thing!" Incorporated under the name "Dramatic Guild," Scott's aspiring young actors organized, early in the school year, this new club devoted to further the study, appreciation, and enjoyment of drama in the high school. The earnest enthusiasm of the members of this organization to learn the means and methods of theatrical productions, both on stage and off stage, has been in a large measure responsible for the work accomplished this year.

To learn, in theory, about plays and theaters, the club invited interesting speakers to address the meetings. Among those teachers at Scott who are recognized authorities on drama are Miss Shaff, Miss Refior, and Miss Bissell. Each, in turn, gave talks and drew upon her individual store of memories of past productions. Charles Eggert, president and organizer of the Dramatic Guild, gave several talks on the theater. Charles is much more than an amateur at acting; for he played in several stock productions while attending Rice School in Massachusetts.

Working on the practical side of drama, the club prepared and presented two plays. The first was entitled "The Explorer." All details of selection, direction, and presentation were handled by club members. The second play, "Curse You, Jack Dalton," was a good old fashioned melodrama, in which the hero (cheers and applause) wins the heroine and the villain (boos and hisses) twists his moustache and mutters dark implicating threats. Giving their all in these plays, the members upheld the motto "Ars Gratia Artis" (Art for Art's Sake).

Knowing that famous actors have begun their careers in amateur acting groups, these club members have worked diligently to acquire technical knowledge of the drama. The memorable founders of this Dramatic Guild have given an added momentum to the spirit of the group with the cry, "The Show Must Go On!"

Future Chopins. The Music Study Guild proved itself to be, in the past year, a great asset to Scott because it helped to cultivate, in the minds of members and non-members alike, a keener appreciation of the higher types of music.

It is not necessary for one to play a musical instrument in order to be an active member of this club, because the Guild embraces members who wish to acquire knowledge of the literary side of classic and contemporary music.

One of the many ways in which the students acquainted themselves with really great music was the recitals sponsored by the guild. The club heard a recital by Mrs. Mary Van Doren in the lecture hall of the Toledo Art Museum. Mrs. Van Doren played many selections from Mendelssohn. This organization also sponsored Donald Scott Morrison's lecture-piano recital given in the Scott High School auditorium for all those wishing to attend. The more talented individual members also gave recitals at some of the group gatherings.

The club was begun in 1928 under Miss Mather. She was succeeded by Mrs. Lucile Rainsberger, who is now guiding the club to still further noteworthy accomplishments. During its seven years of existence, the Guild has presented notable musicians of the day. It is expected that this policy will be followed in future years.

Besides recitals, current topics were discussed at the meetings. "Swing," "Jazz," and other popular music were included in these discussions. On still other occasions biographies of famous composers were the topic of conversation.

The Music Study Guild is not only an educational project but also an entertaining one in which students may engage. This club, we feel, has sown the seed; in the future years from this group, perhaps, may come another Beethoven, or a Jan Paderewski, or a Chopin!

Literary Ladies. To be a Phil is to belong to one of Scott's few organizations which dedicate their meetings to further the literary interests of the members. These young women have a great desire to know authors of renown, to study and understand their works, and more fully to appreciate them. In order to accomplish these ends, the Philaethean Literary Society was formed and has to date upheld its purposes admirably.

The motto of this club is "Literature is the Garden of Wisdom." In order to pick some of the fruits within, the Phils began early in the year to study the music, art, and literature of European countries. Russia was the first country to have its literature thoroughly examined by these budding young critics. The material covered was of a pre-war nature. Germany was the next country to be discussed. At subsequent gatherings French and Italian cultural arts were thoroughly analyzed.

Spreads are one of the interesting semi-social affairs of this club. One spread was devoted to the initiation of dutifully obedient pledges. At this particular meeting the pledges were acquainted with the high standards and noble purposes of the club. At another spread members gave book reviews and read poetry written by contemporary poets. After the final initiations a tea was given for new members. The purpose of this tea, it is said, was not to drink tea, but to allow all the members to acquaint themselves further with each other.

Under the joint advisership of Miss Staadecker and Miss Keplinger, the Philaethean Literary Society has completed a very successful year in the study of the music, art, and literature of European countries. This club is to be congratulated on its twenty-fourth year as one of Scott's best educational organizations.

Women of Letters. "We shall be second to none," cried the young women of Scott's Periclean Literary Society as they presented a full year's program of top social and educational events. It was this ringing cry that so aroused the Peris as to make them eager to uphold their threefold purpose, namely: "To discover and encourage original talent, to create enthusiasm for scholarship, and to promote enlightened leadership."

The educational meetings, this year, were devoted to the study of plays and playwrights. Because this is a modern age and these are modern girls, it follows, therefore, that modern plays should be studied. Modern authors' lives, private and professional, were delved into with a fervor seldom seen other than just before final examinations. To gain first hand information about plays, the society invited Mrs. John McNierney to address one meeting. She spoke on recent Broadway plays she had seen.

One of the social events promoted by the Peris was a faculty tea given in the Scott Library. This was a delightful affair, with the girls chatting amiably with teachers at whom they, a few hours previously, had looked daggers! The pledges of this club were given practice in practical husband-hunting when they were required to obtain five written proposals from prominent Scott boys. After having obtained them, they were required to accept one and give the lucky chap an answer. This harmless practice might have complications if any of the boys had realized that a contract of this sort is valid in "the eyes of the law."

Concluding a most active year, the Periclean Literary Society owes much to its adviser, Miss Olive Kirkby, who gave so liberally of her time and effort to promote the interests of the society.

They Appreciate Literature Why shouldn't these young girls appreciate literature? Is not their motto, "To build up in the members a greater appreciation of literature," one which after a year of application will bring results? Emphatically yes! and in order to uphold their motto they chose short stories as the first topic for discussion. The development of the short story was traced, and then the better results of modern authors' treatment of the form, style, and composition were thoroughly studied.

Mixing business with pleasure, the Zets gave many teas during the year. One tea was given for the Zets of Woodward, Waite, Libbey, and DeVillbiss. A program prepared by the hostesses was graciously received and acclaimed. In return the Woodward society entertained the Scott girls. The other teas were given for the formal invitation of newer members. Almost a score of pledges were made bona fide members of the Zetaethan Literary Society.

There were two spreads given in the homes of Shirley Hicks and Mary Helen Bettridge, respectively. At these spreads the pledges were given their rough initiation. It is understood that the pledges were razzed, hazed, terrified, horrified, and generally roughed up by the brutal looking members in the picture below.

One of the miscellaneous activities sponsored by this organization was the filling of a Christmas basket for Scott's annual Christmas assembly.

The climax of the year's activities came at the annual Literary Society Banquet and Dance. This is an affair sponsored jointly by the Periclean, Philaethan, and Zetaethan Literary Societies of Scott.

This club has presented a well rounded program of social, educational, and beneficial events. With the aid of Mrs. Rainsberger, adviser, this club has added another memorable chapter to the history of Scott High organizations.

SCOTTFRIARS

Men of the Written Word. When Scott's male members felt the urge to delve deeper into the work of literature this year, they, as men of action, banded together, even as the ancient monks, and formed the school's only boys' literary society.

Choosing the name of this club proved to be no small problem. After much debate and deliberation, they decided to adapt the name of an old English literary group, the Black Friars, to Scottfriars. Soon after organizing, a constitution was written in which were incorporated all the principles of this new group.

In its initial year and under direction of Mr. Harry Lamb, the Scottfriars completed an active year as "men of the written word." Their motto, "To promote all things literary," was put into execution soon after the club was fully organized. A talk was given by Miss Alma Paschall on creative writing. As a creative writing teacher and author of the book Creative Expression, Miss Paschall is one who can speak with authority on the subject. Inspired by her talk, members of the club have written original plays and short stories. Realizing that argument stimulates interest, persons in the club have held debates relative to various forms of literature. A book-a-month club is one of the newer, but highly successful measures taken to increase the number and quality of books read. At the weekly meetings short readings are given by both the adviser and members. In order to make its influence felt around school, the club posted lists of books which informed the school at large of best books both classical and contemporary.

In this manner the club aided not only those in the organization, but all Scott in becoming "men of the written word."

"My Kingdom for a Horse!" These immortal words put into the mouth of Richard the Lion-Hearted by the great bard of Avon may be used to express the desires of the Scott Riding Club on Monday afternoon. Each week on this day the members of the club drive out to the Douglas Meadows, climb into the saddles, canter off, and disappear beyond the horizon.

The Scott Riding Club was organized this year by the enviers of the great equestrian sport. It was decided that the organization be divided into two parts; the experienced riders, aided by Mr. Corbett, and the beginners. Some of the first group displayed what the poets call streamlined grace, but those of the second group, well, no one is perfect at the beginning.

The Riding Club, although in its first year, found many enthusiastic Scott students who liked to ride, but had not the opportunity to do so, willing to join.

The group adopted for its purpose "To give the members of the club a chance to ride."

The finer points of good horsemanship were emphasized thoroughly. They included correct mounting, proper posture, the right way to trot, canter, and walk the horses, and the one and only way to dismount—on your feet and not on other parts of one's anatomy. When ending a ride, the pupils were taught the proper way to cool the horse so as not to endanger the health of the animal.

This new club devoted to the art of proper horsemanship has ridden through its first year with flying colors. It has set an excellent precedent for riding clubs of Scott by mastering details of proper riding. We sincerely hope that other riding clubs shall gallop through future years with a year's program as effective as that of the 1937 group.

Over the Top. These three words are not a stern command of a wartime general but are rather a prayer sent skyward by members of the Scott Badminton Club as they try desperately to get the elusive little shuttlecock over the net. This organization is one of the youngest of Scott clubs. It was organized this year under the influence of Mrs. Gehring and met occasionally in the gym. The members of the club played the game, although now many are joining who do not know, but wish to know how to play this, one of the fastest present-day sports.

The game is played in a court which is approximately one half as large as a tennis court. The net is strung across the middle of the court about seven and one half feet above the ground. Each player uses a racket resembling that used in tennis, except for an elongated handle. The object which flies through the air at a great speed is the shuttlecock or the shuttle. This is a sphere made of a light substance with feathers tied around one half of the sphere to guide the flight. It is balanced so the half without feathers is continuously downward. The shuttle should always be in the air, for the player who allows it to drop to the ground loses the point or the serve, as only the server may gain a point. The game is fifteen points, and the victor is required to triumph by at least two points.

If a student wishes to participate in an activity to improve himself both physically and mentally, we have no better suggestion than that he learn to play badminton and join this organization whose purpose is to promote the playing of this game.

Corridor Guardians. "Halt! have you a hall permit!" is the question put to all Scotters who stroll the hall during regular conference or class time. If they have, they continue on their way unmolested until the same question is put to them by another vigilant hall patrol member. If, however, the person has nothing to show for his action, it is the sad duty of the hall patrol to hand the unlucky one a little white slip, known as a subpoena, which summons him to appear before the student court, and to "tell it to the judge!" Other duties of the guardians of our halls are to safeguard lockers, to direct strangers to their respective destinations, and to keep the halls free from disturbances.

Mr. Lake, faculty adviser, and Nelson Rodeheaver, head of the hall patrol, together appoint a captain for each hour, who, in turn, appoints all individual members. There are four members on each floor with a teacher and the captain to advise and assist. The captain sees that all posts are filled, and if they are vacated by absence they ask for volunteers from the senior study rooms. Captains appointed for the first semester were Edward Davis, James Smith, Pat Gillen, Arthur Toffler, Max Markovich, Vic Flath, and Hike Sohikian.

This is the only organization in Scott that is desperately trying to destroy itself by becoming so efficient that it is no longer needed. It is their wish that students stay on the right side of the law, obey school rules, and maintain order in the hall. When the above are facts instead of ideals, the hall patrol will cease to exist and Scott will become a truly selfgoverning institution.

Judging by the efficient work done by this year's hall patrol, the above ideals will soon become facts. "Corridor Guardians" of Scott, we salute you, with our right hand, and in our left—a hall permit!

The seniors leave a heritage;
The juniors this do claim;
The sophomores walk off with it;
The freshmen get the blame.

The Classes are the different steps
From petty insurrection,
To civilized pursuits in life
And all-around perfection.

As we reach the end of our high school days, we can look back on our years at Scott with not a little pride.

Although we had no freshman class officers, many members of our class distinguished themselves in scholarship, activities, and athletics. Through the leadership of Jim Hausman, our sophomore class president, we were one of the very few classes who started our junior year with a surplus in the treasury. This was accomplished through a sophomore-freshman basketball game and the Sophomore Prom.

Charles Tobin, junior president, appointed Betty Blair, as chairman of the main social event of the year, the J-Hop.

Plays, dances, social events, and last of all commencement marked the high spots of our senior year. The first senior social event of the year, the Mid-Year, was held December 11 at the Chamber of Commerce, with Wayne Challen furnishing the music. "The Whole Town's Talking," directed by Eugene Miller, had several stars in the cast. Marjorie Swick, Virginia Gaul, Raymond Morton, and George Newton played the leads; Anita Carvalho, Charles Eggert, Alfred Glick, Shirley Mitchell, Bette Deeds, Barbara Souder, Marilyn Corbett, and George O'Toole gave fine interpretations of the other characters; and all provided the audience with numerous laughs. The play was the chief money raising project sponsored by the class and was a great success.

The last few weeks of school are always crowded with big events for seniors. Starting this season was the Senior Prom, held at the Trianon. This, the only formal school dance, was held on May 14 and started senior festivities in a proper manner. In the Collingwood Avenue Presbyterian Church, on Sunday, June 6, Dr. R. Lincoln Long delivered the baccalaureate address to a large number of the class of '37, their friends and parents. Only seniors were present at the banquet, which was late in May. Class officers and other prominent seniors gave after dinner speeches. Miss Schaff, our able class adviser, to whom we are most grateful for all her leadership and cooperation, also entertained with a speech in her usual cheery and amusing style.

On June 11 we met for the last time as a class and walked from school to the State Theater for our commencement program. Here, following an address, we received our diplomas, and thus the class of '37 was formally disbanded.

Jean Killian, left, acted as chairman of the announcement committee. Louise Kasle, right, planned the final event of the year, commencement.

C L A S S

Anita Carvalho, left, and Victor Flath, right, are the co-chairmen of the social committee which put over, so successfully, the Mid-Year and Senior Prom. Betty Blair, center, arranged the banquet. Jim Hausman, left, was principally responsible for selecting the class memorial. Lorene Hein, center, was the baccalaureate chairman, and Alfred Glick, right, headed the play committee.

Under the guidance of our popular advisory committee of one, Mr. Baum, the class of '38 has just completed its first year as upper classmen. Vice President Mabel Greene, Secretary Jane Davis, and Treasurer George Cole have ably assisted in leading the class through its junior activities.

James Benschoter, as chairman of the ring committee, and Lois Bell, Jo Ann Morrison, John Cole, Luke Dickie, Paul Klag, and Ted Ayers selected the class ring, which has met with widespread approval.

As in previous years, every junior is anxious to make the J-Hop a grand success. This year's social committee, Chairman Harriet Applegate, Betty Hardy, Virginia Nathanson, Janet Urich, Al Lumm, Betty Erwin, Esther Simon, and Bill Hausman, planned and conducted this outstanding social event. This year brought forth a new sub-committee whose task was to take care of all publicity and the sale of tickets. Bill Pickett, chairman, selected Janet Bourque and Alice Deeds as committee members.

Now we are about to pass on to the position of authority left vacant by the graduating seniors. Now it is our turn at the helm. We must do our utmost to maintain the high standards and ideals of Scott, to bear the torch successfully for another year.

Class President

The sophomore class is the melting pot of Scott. Brother Sophomore may be a representative of Robinson Junior or of some other Toledo or out-of-town high school. "East is East and West is West," and here, as in the freshman class, the twain do meet. With our resultant wide range of experiences and abilities, we are destined to do great things.

Already we have established a precedent. With the help of Mrs. Meffly and Mrs. Gehring, we organized a dancing class, consisting of five lessons and a terminating party. Then too we started the year with thirty dollars jingling in our jeans.

In order to insure the success of the sophomore dance, we had five committees working together and separately—the committee on arrangements, the committee on invitations, the finance committee, the committee on publicity and decorations, and the program committee. These were chairman-ed by Joe Landis, Lisbeth Morgan, Patricia Nichols, Adele Konopka, and Winifred Frost, respectively.

However, we have not been entirely of a social temperament, for several members of our class have mounted to the top rung of the scholastic ladder, and some have merited esteem for their accomplishments at Bowling Green.

It was said that, as freshmen, we were the best class that Scott had ever had. This year I think that we have succeeded in living up to this remarkable record. Next year as upper-classmen we shall climb to new heights of achievement.

T H E C L A S S O F 1 9 4 0

We have served our apprenticeship at last, and as spokesman for the freshman class, I wish to express our gratitude for the friendliness and cooperation of the faculty who have helped us through this first most important year of high school.

Vice President Marjorie Moorehead, Secretary Betty Waters, and Treasurer Tom Ulmer have cheerfully served in the duties that have fallen to their lot, and the success of the Freshman Frolic, which was held in the gymnasium on the ninth of February, was due largely to the excellent planning of Miss Clark and Shirley Cuthbertson, under whose direction functioned a committee composed of the class officers, Monica Heaston, Lewis Saks, Jane Schneider, Eddie Sing, Ruth Shinn, Raphael Etigson, Ruth Maxon, Alice Ruple, Mildred Shuy, and Thelma Davis. Earl Sala was Master of Ceremonies, and Jay Glassman's orchestra played.

Now as the school year closes, we can look back with satisfaction along the track we have just followed. We have run one-fourth of the race in good form, but still the upperclassmen are setting the pace, making us sprint to keep up, making us look ahead and plan our next steps. Are we equal to the race which they are leading now? In a year or so we shall be the pacemakers, and this first year will be the broad and firm or weak and tottering foundation on which we run our course. "Veni, vidi, —."—shall we, like Caesar, conquer? Or shall we, like Napoleon, meet our Waterloo?

BUD BOURQUE,
Class President

Napoleon and Wellington have met at Waterloo;
Mark Anthony has kept his date with Cleopatra, too;
Electric lights by Edison and cars by Henry Ford—
'Tis names like these historians are willing to record!
There are some famous folk at Scott, and really it's a pity
That they are not more widely known throughout our lovely city.
And so at last, to spread their fame, upon the next few pages
We have recorded Scott's "Who's Who" to last us through the ages.

Meet Reddy Kilowatt, M. S. S.*

A bright boy is Reddy—began life as a tiny spark and immediately graduated into a full-grown electric impulse. His single-purpose ambition in life is to perform hundreds of tasks easier, quicker, better and much cheaper than you can possibly do them any other way. Wherever you go, you'll find Reddy Kilowatt smiling and eager to serve you.

Without a place for autographs
This wouldn't be complete,
So if your hands are occupied,
Just sign it with your feet.

Irene O'Brien

W Bennett
12/15/57

Many people signed this book,
And all of them were jolly,
And so if you refuse to sign,
You must be off your trolley.

Richard Marcus Carvel.
Chas. E. Eppert & you.

You'll wish I'd signed my autograph
In future years to come;
For I'll be in the Hall of Fame,
And you'll be just a bum.
